* NWACC has a new Early Childhood credential called Birth to Pre-K. If students want to complete an AAS degree and apply for the Birth to Pre-K credential through the State, all courses must be taken on campus. Therefore, students can use articulated courses CHED 1003 and CHED 2033 towards an AAS degree, but cannot at a later date apply to the State for the Birth to Pre-K credential because these courses would not meet the requirements for State-approved courses. Right now this credential is new and not really being required by Child Care providers, so students may or may not want to apply for it. In the future, the Child Care centers or Schools may start requiring workers to have this credential.

 After 2012, Programming I & II will need to be rearticulated with NWACC by individual high schools.
