Target Audience & Transferability: Implicit in the intermediate level of foreign language learning is an assumption that the learner has acquired an elementary level of skill in French. Since there is no foreign language requirement for the Associate of Arts degree at NWACC, any foreign language class that a student might take is either a general elective or will be used to satisfy a foreign language requirement at a four-year university. Intermediate French I is designed for students planning to transfer their foreign language credits and is fully transferable to virtually any other college or university. However it is always advisable to check on transferability ahead of time with any college with which NWACC does not have a pre-existing articulation agreement.

Common Objectives/Student Outcomes: Intermediate French I is a course for students who have completed two full years of high school French, Elementary French 1 & 2 at the college level, or other language experience that will permit them to begin the intermediate level. Students will apply their prior knowledge and understanding of French and expand on their skills of speaking, reading, writing, comprehension, and vocabulary acquisition. Through creative use of the language, the student will participate in progressively more challenging conversations and writing, narrating past, present, and future events. Elements of grammar will be reviewed throughout the course. The class will be conducted in French though some definitions and explanations will be given in English.

Standard Course Outline

Topics: Intermediate French I covers the first half of *Collage; revision grammair*e and students read such works from Collage; lectures litteraires as determined by the instructor. Students are responsible for all the vocabulary and grammar structures of the text.

Skills: Skills fall into four categories: accurate grammar application, oral communication, beginning reading and interpreting literature, and cultural awareness.

In grammar application the student will achieve a higher level of accuracy in expression than in elementary French, relating past, present, and future events and situations using present, preterit, imperfect, and compound tenses. Subjunctive and conditional constructions will be used to express feelings, opinions, and hypotheses.

In oral communications the student will move beyond the novice level to begin to create intentional statements and participate in progressively more challenging conversations, and communicate successfully in spontaneous situations.

In literature, Intermediate French I will introduce the students to short stories, dramatic sketches, and the prose of recognized French writers which will help them appreciate French literature and strengthen their reading skill, interpretation and involvement in the language.

Culture studies will course consisting in exposure to the history, geography, folklore and ethnic diversity of the French-speaking world.

Required Methods of Instruction: Intermediate French I is focused on language application and assumes a degree of prior mastery of the language. The intermediate student should have enough language acquisition skills to be able to take a heavier responsibility for the review of already studied concepts and studying and applying less familiar structures than students at the elementary level. The student will read stories or watch videos, reflect, write, and discuss in French in class weekly. The instructor will maintain the pace of the class and facilitate the interaction and involvement of the student in class activities and discussions.

Special Notes on Intermediate French:

1. There will be a wide range in language preparation in your students:
 - a. two or more years of high school French. Often these students come with little oral proficiency.
 - b. two semesters of NWACC Elementary French. These students are generally ready.
 - c. two semesters of Elementary French at another college. Often these students are behind because the college they came from doesn't finish a review of essential grammar in two semesters. They need to be told that they will have an added responsibility to catch up on their own.
2. Few students will be able to express themselves with much fluency. Language programs at the high schools and most colleges don't do a very good job of developing oral proficiency. However, they know a lot more French than they are willing to use. The instructor must create activities that require oral expression. It usually works better if they prepare what they are going to speak about in notes they have taken as they read the material that the instructor assigns.
3. The student need to do a review of the grammar presented in each chapter. The students should work through the exercises on their own and bring any questions to class. Otherwise the student should use class time to discuss the readings and their writings.

4. The book will give the student plenty of ideas for assignments. In any given chapter the students should have to work through the grammar exercises on their own. Make the answers to the exercises available to them.

Required Forms of Assessment:

ORAL QUIZZES: Each student will take two oral quizzes during the semester and one as part of the final exam. The quizzes will be conducted in the language lab in MAT Bldg. Rm.13.

TERM PROJECT: Students will write a 500-word, typed report in French on a specific topic related to the student's adopted French-speaking country, include cover sheet, bibliography (minimum, three sources), and creative, colorful, thematic artwork. The report will be delivered to the class orally and turned in for a grade two weeks before the end of the semester.

TESTS: There will be a test after each chapter, a mid-term exam and a comprehensive final exam.
