NWACC Food Pantry Given $1,000

Two NWACC Honor Students brings $1000 for Food Pantry

Samantha McClain
Managing Editor

On April 14, two NorthWest Arkansas Community College students attended the Hunger Summit at Heifer International Pavilion in Little Rock, Ark., to represent NorthWest Arkansas Community College food pantry. There, NWACC received a $1,000 check provided by the Garcia Family Fund, said Thanaisawan Hill, NWACC honor student.

"My main motivation for going to the Hunger Summit was to learn more about student food insecurity and how to improve our own NWACC food pantry," Hill said. "There was so much information about solutions and problems to food insecurity, it would take hours to list them all. But now we have a lot of ideas to increase awareness of food insecurity and our food pantry, lowering the stigma, and hopefully providing more support and food towards our food pantry," he said. Hill was accompanied by Stephanie Palacios, also an NWACC honor student.

The NWACC food pantry uses plastic bags to carry food which often break when carrying large amounts, so they need stronger, eco-friendly bags, said Hill. In the past, the food pantry would use cardboard boxes and plastic Wal-Mart bags, said Cierra Collins, coordinator of Student Life said. The money will be used to buy better bags with the NWACC food pantry logo worked by the marketing team on the reusable bags.

"Another one of the largest problems" Hill said, "was that many students didn't use the food pantry because of the stigma behind receiving from the food pantry or because they thought other students need it more," he said. Students at the Hunger Summit discussed ways to receive food from the food pantry discreetly by placing food in a less public area or dropping the food to the recipient's car.

Collins said she grew up using food pantries with her mom and admitted there is a reputation they provide unhealthy foods. She said the NWACC Food Pantry will provide fresh and healthy food as opposed to slightly expired or unhealthy foods.

"One of the largest problems identified was that most students didn't even know about their college food pantries or how to access them," Hill said.

"I believe anyone can benefit from the food pantry. Sometimes life gets hard and the last thing you want to worry about is going to the grocery store and getting food," Collins said.

The NWACC food pantry is available for students, faculty and staff. At <https://www.nwacc.edu/student-services/healthandwellbeing/food-clothing.aspx>, fill out a form to have access to the food bank. Two separate forms can be filled out. One form is for one-use only. The other may be filled out bi-weekly for regular distribution. The website also provides dates to pick up the food and when the forms need to be filled out, Collins said.

NWACC Hosts 35th Small Works

Small Works on Paper Art is displayed in the Integrated Design Lab at NorthWest Arkansas Community College Exhibit

Keith Edwards
Staff Writer

NorthWest Arkansas Community College Integrated Design Lab hosted the President's Advisory Council on Art's Small Works on Paper exhibit from April 4-25.

For 35 years, this juried art exhibition sponsored by the Arkansas Arts Council is a yearlong touring exhibition that showcases the (small)

2-D works no larger than 18x24 inches by Arkansas artists who are members of the Arkansas Artist Registry, which is a free service provided to the visual arts community. Eligible mediums include painting, photography, drawing, printmaking, mixed media and collage.

The SWOP exhibition travels to up to ten venues throughout the state in a year-long show, which offers Arkansas artists opportunities to display their artwork to patrons throughout the state. Each year the juror is allotted an amount of money to select a few purchase awards from the exhibit. This year, Steven Wise, NWACC art instructor is one of the participating artists. His oil painting titled "Face," was purchased.

"I like my work to reside in a gap between pure abstraction and representation. This work does this for me by creating a face in an otherwise field of abstract marks," said Wise of his oil painting on yupo, which is a Japanese synthetic paper.

"We've been lucky enough to be hosts a few times over the years and I'm very excited to have our beloved Integrated Design Lab as the new venue for what is always a fantastic show!" said full-time art faculty Eric Smith, and member of PACA.

Submissions open May 2022 for Small Works on Paper 2023, according to information on the Arkansas Arts Council web pages. Entry requirements and eligibility to participate in SWOP require enrollment in Arkansas Artist Registry. For more info on the traveling exhibit contact www.arkansasheritage.com/arkansas-art-council/aac-programs/small-works-on-paper.

NWACC Art Club Took a Bike Ride

Keith Edwards
Staff Writer

NorthWest Arkansas Community College Art Club collaborated with People For Bikes on April 15 to ride from the Shewmaker Center for Workforce Technologies, located on the main NWACC campus in southeast Bentonville, to Crystal Bridges Museum of American Art, which is located in north-central Bentonville, about one mile north of 21c Museum Hotel, a 2.6-mile ride one way.

John Paul Shaffer, northwest Arkansas business innovation director for PeopleForBikes, and Melisa Jennings, bike guide, led the group of ten that included students, faculty, and staff.

“The purpose of this event was to create a fun activity with the Art Club that reinforces community partnership (with Crystal Bridges and People For Bikes) to promote the arts and bike accessibility, which is a huge part of our NWA community,” said Mary Tidy-Coyle, full-time art faculty, Art Club advisor, and ride participant.

PeopleForBikes loaned bikes and helmets to those needed them. Shaffer said he leads PeopleForBikes’ work in northwest Arkansas to get more people commuting by bike through workplace-based programming and incentives. He said PeopleForBikes’s mission includes getting more people to ride bikes more often. Since 1999, PeopleForBikes has created a prominent place for bikes in transportation, mobility, and recreational decisions at all levels of government, according to peopleforbikes.org.

“I find joy in helping community leaders make their bold visions a reality,” Shaffer said. Once in the museum, the group was entertained and educated in the Contemporary and Modern Art wings by Kaye Collier, museum educator. Collier explained many of the sculptures and paintings by various artists such as Mark Rothko and Helen Frankenthaler.

Tidy-Coyle said, “I loved partnering with JP, Allan [Benson, NWACC director of Student Life]; and the art educators at Crystal Bridges. We had a beautiful ride and an informative and fun tour of the modern and contemporary exhibitions at Crystal Bridges – the Art Club is hoping to do this again soon!”

Art Club members Stephanie Lafayette, Tracy Lindstrom, and Randall Edwards, graphic design majors, and Chloe Chappelle, art major, participated in the guided ride and tour.

Honor Student Helps Havenwood

Samantha McClain
Managing Editor

Nicole Preston, NorthWest Arkansas Community College Honors Student Association vice president and a volunteer at Havenwood, hosted a donation drive for Havenwood, a women’s shelter, during the month of March earning $161.15 worth of products. Preston said donations included food, diapers, and hygienic products.

“Havenwood is a two-year transitional housing facility for women and children escaping crisis situations,” said Jamie Hudson, Director of Development at Havenwood. “We provide case management, counseling, group meetings, and many other resources to help them move from crisis to self-sufficiency.”

In 1993, the Community Development Corporation of Bentonville/Bella Vista renovated its building into a housing program for single parents, Hudson said. The Havenwood building is located at 808 N. Main in Bentonville Ark, a 10,560 sq. ft. multi-level building originally designed as a church sanctuary, included classrooms, kitchen, and fellowship hall and was completed in 1980. The building now has fifteen apartments, which include a community kitchen, dining area, closet, food pantry, donation closets, playroom, library, computer lab, laundry room, and two common areas, according to nwahavenwood.org/about-us.

“Nicole’s supply drive provides daily needs for the women and children we serve. These drives are very important as basic supplies are greatly needed every month,” Hudson said.

SKD Seeks Composition Book Donations

Haley Carter
Staff Writer

Sigma Kappa Delta of NorthWest Arkansas Community College, a chapter of the English Honors Society for two year colleges, intends to collect 6,000 soft cover composition notebooks as donations towards a volunteer-run program called Arkansas Free Read, said Sabrina Chesne, professor of english, and co-advisor of SKD. Arkansas Free Read is a program developed to help incarcerated women in the state of Arkansas receive donated books and similar education materials. The Ministry of Grace Chapter of Daughters of the King, and St. Mark’s Episcopal Church in Little Rock, Ark., run the program, according to the Arkansas Free Read’s website.

People can deposit notebooks into the decorated boxes, which are placed throughout NWACC campus buildings, Chesne said, including in front of the Pauline Whitaker Library in Burns Hall, the Barnes and Noble Bookstore in the Becky Paneitz Student Center, the Shewmaker Center for Global Business Development, the Health Professions building, and in the Melba Shewmaker National Child Protection Training Center. Collection of donated notebooks ends May 6, Chesne said.

Requirements for the composition notebooks are they have light-weight, bendable cardboard covers, and glued or sewn in pages, Chesne said. If the opportunity to donate to this cause was missed, or to obtain more knowledge about the organization, visit the Arkansas Free Read’s website at arfreeread.org.

Thank you Dr. Evelyn Jorgenson
NWACC President 2013-2022

BY EAGLE VIEW STAFF

Dr. Evelyn Jorgenson, president of NorthWest Arkansas Community College since July 2013, steps away from her office at the end of the day June 30 to begin a new phase of her life as a retiree.

Her 10 years at NWACC are characterized by change.

Large changes include construction of the Washington County Center in Springdale and the Integrated Design Lab on the main Bentonville campus, a new building for the NWACC physical plant, purchase of railroad easement property that runs through the main campus, working with the city of Bentonville to coordinate the extension of 8th Street through the North 40 portion of main campus, a shift from using Banner as the basic software program for most campus workings to using Workday, and a number of new programs, including most recently Bicycle Maintenance Technician.

Jorgenson began a practice of taking questions directly from faculty called "Q&A with Dr. J," held at the beginning of each fall and spring semester. If she couldn't answer the questions, she later found answers and emailed them to faculty. This established her as a person interested in transparency.

She continued the practice begun by Dr. Becky Panietz, past president of NWACC, of hosting Pizza with the President, during which students were provided free pizza and given an opportunity to speak with Jorgenson about anything on their minds.

Jorgenson also began a regular "Notes from the President" email in which she communicated with the college community about initiatives, changes, and news.

Most importantly, Jorgenson provided a steady hand on the wheel during the coronavirus pandemic, letting her team of administrators, deans, and staff guide NWACC in a nearly seamless move to online and remote instruction.

Herself a community college graduate, she said she understood NWACC students.

Farewell, Dr. Jorgenson. May all good things be yours.

How To Submit
Letters To The Editor

To submit a letter to the editor, go to the NWACC website at www.nwacc.edu. Click 'Current students' tab, look under 'Student Opportunities' heading, click 'Student Newspaper' and then click the 'Letters to the Editor' tab. Letters should be 300 words or less and must be signed with author's name, relationship to college (student, faculty, staff) and department.

The Eagle View reserves the right to edit letters for libel, clarity and space constraints. Anonymous letters will not be published. Letters do not reflect the views of the Eagle View newspaper or NorthWest Arkansas Community College.
